Jean-Yves Daclin, 53, is joining PlasticsEurope, the European plastics producers' association, to head up its activities in France. As of 1 July, he will be succeeding Eric Quenet, who held this position for the past three years.

A graduate of "Ecole Polytechnique" and "Télécom Paris", Jean-Yves Daclin has 25 years' experience in specialty chemicals and low-carbon economy solutions.

"For me, PlasticsEurope is a great opportunity to support our industry in its transition to full circularity and to promote its transformation for a more sustainable world.", said Jean-Yves Daclin.

PlasticsEurope is the pan-European association of plastics manufacturers with offices across Europe. For over 100 years, science and innovation has been the DNA that cuts across our industry.
